Written regulations and laws that define how property in specific geographic zones can be used. Zoning ordinances specify whether zones can be used for residential or commercial purposes, and may also regulate lot size, placement, bulk (or density) and the height of structures.
“It is obvious that provision must be made for changing the regulations as conditions change or new conditions arise. Otherwise zoning would be a "strait-jacket" and a detriment to a community instead of an asset.”

Comment from A Standard State Zoning Enabling Act, United States Department of Commerce, revised edition, 1926

Microbrewery Methods of Sale:

- traditional three-tier system (brewer to wholesaler to retailer to consumer)
- two-tier system (brewer acting as wholesaler to retailer to consumer)
- directly to the consumer through carryouts and/or on-site tap-room or restaurant sales.
Most communities which define “brewery” differentiate large breweries from microbreweries in terms of the volume of production. Large breweries generally produce over 60,000 barrels annually and microbreweries produce less (typically 15,000 barrels).

Breweries and distilleries are generally defined as manufacturing uses and restricted to industrial zones.

Microbreweries permitted by special use permit in other districts/ typically limited by square footage or production quantities.

Most microbreweries have restrictions on hours of operation.
Establishment for the manufacture, blending, fermentation, processing and packaging of alcoholic beverages with a floor area of 10,000 square feet or less that takes place wholly inside a building.
